

[16:18, 19/09/2026] Instinct: Your 30-day placement plan

Goal: remove the unknowns, get application-ready, and build a steady pipeline before year 2. Budget about 3 hours a week: two 60-75 minute focus blocks and one 20-30 minute follow-up block.

Days 1-7

- * Ask Regent's Clinical Practice Team for your cohort deadline and expected start date, approved-provider list, readiness paperwork, supervision rules, and application guidance
- * Update your placement CV around transferable strengths from engineering management: listening, difficult conversations, boundaries, confidentiality, inclusion, reflective practice, and working under supervision
- * Create one adaptable cover-letter base
- * Set up a tracker: provider, contact, date applied, response, follow-up, interview, outcome

Days 8-14

- * Shortlist 8-12 approved placements that work from home or M&S and fit your schedule
- * Rank them A/B/C by fit and practicality
- * Send 3 tailored Tier A applications

Days 15-21

- * Send another 3-4 applications
- * Follow up after the provider's stated window, or after 7-10 days
- * Prepare interview answers on why psychotherapy, what management experience brings, boundaries/confidentiality/supervision, and how you'll protect placement time

Days 22-30

- * Send 2-3 backup applications if the pipeline is thin
- * Record the practical facts after every interview: client flow, in-person hours, supervision, weekly commitment, travel, start date, fees/checks
- * Compare options using four non-negotiables: Regent's approval, ability to meet clinical requirements, a sustainable M&S schedule, and safe supervision

[16:18, 19/09/2026] Instinct: By day 30, aim for:

- * Deadline and start date confirmed
- * Approved list and paperwork obtained
- * CV and reusable application base ready
- * 6-10 targeted applications, adjusted to the actual deadline
- * Follow-ups current
- * Any options assessed consistently

If the deadline is under six weeks away, compress the first 14 days into one week and ask the placement coordinator for urgent support. Otherwise, keep this steady pace.

The rule I'd use: choose a placement you can attend reliably while working full time over one that sounds impressive but creates burnout.
